Jeanne,

The Dental Talk Learning Community was with Dental Assisting (not Dental Hygiene) and I worked with Mary Kay Davis back in Fall 2007.

The other Learning Communities that we have offered include English and Japanese learning community that was offered last Fall 2008 and I believe is being offered again this semester, but I'm not sure if the instructors advertised for this Learning Community.

Lastly, our year long Learning Community is the University Transfer Achievement Program, that I will be teaching for in Spring 2010. UTAP was not offered last year due both Mary Forman and myself were on sabbatical. We actually were all ready to have a part time English faculty offer the course and flyers were distributed and announcements made, then at the last minute, the adjunct faculty member received a Full-time offer at another college. Needless to say, UTAP was put on hiatus for one year, but we are now back and stronger than ever.

My role as Learning Community Coordinator is no longer funded by the school, however I am keeping my title and will continue to be involved in Learning Communities. I'm hoping more one semester learning communities will emerge from the Math area, but a lot depends on the department. I will be working with Richard Fee in the spring to get faculty interested in creating a learning community similar to "Reading Between the Lines," the LC that was between beginning Math and beginning English.

Michael

PS: I don't believe you are mean, therefore how can I be stupid....LOL

O.K. Can I now have the tutorial added to my Interpersonal Communication Course for this semester? Will I be able to transfer it to my other Argument and Critical Thinking class too?

Michael,

I've searched all of the online schedules of classes and found two learning communities,

- a. Fall 2009: ATC 183 C and COMM 105 C
- b. Spring 2009: ENGL 058 C and MATH 015 C

I know you did a couple with dental hygiene (I think it was them). Which class was that? Which semesters?

Any others I'm missing?

Jeanne
