American Awards Set for February 22

Ed and Dixie Arnold have been selected as Man and Woman of the Year.

The 2003 Americana Awards Banquet will be held on February 22 and will honor Ed and Dixie Arnold as the Man and Woman of the Year. Anaheim Memorial Medical Center, Los Alamitos Medical Center and West Anaheim Medical Center have been selected as the Distinguished Business Partners.

Americana will again be held at Disney's Grand Californian Hotel, and KABC-TV's Sid Garcia is returning as the presenter. Last year's Woman of the Year, Isabelle Villaseñor, has agreed to serve as the honorary chair of the event.

Ed Arnold is the co-host and managing editor for KOCE-TV's “Real Orange” news program. Before joining the public television station, he was a long-time sports anchor for KTLA-TV.

He has a proven track record in broadcasting and a trusted presence in the community. He works with civic organizations, youth groups, and various charities.

A community college student himself, Ed earned his associates' degree in business from Santa Ana College and a bachelor's in broadcasting from Cal State Long Beach.

Dixie Arnold is in education. She is principal at Eader Elementary School in Huntington Beach. The school is well known in the community for its reputation of excellence.

Candidates' Forum Draws Crowd; Governor Hopefuls Coming

A dozen candidates seeking seats in the California Legislature and the U.S. Congress appeared on campus last Wednesday to spell out their positions as part of an open forum sponsored by the Political Science Department. Cypress College's newly formed Voter Registration Task Force, headed by Student Advocate Karen Johnson, kicked off their efforts at the event.

A second forum and voter registration drive is scheduled for next Wednesday, from 9-10:45 a.m., in H-131. That event will feature California gubernatorial candidates from the Natural Law, Green, Libertarian and American Independent parties. Both Bill Simon and incumbent Gray Davis have been invited; neither is confirmed, though the date of the event was changed at the request of Simon's campaign since he was unavailable on the original date.

Last Wednesday's forum was heavily attended by the Libertarian Party. It also featured all three candidates for the 68th Assembly District seat, including incumbent Ken Maddox and challenger Al Snook, who is the father of Dan Snook, a faculty member in Cypress College's Auto Tech Program.

Another candidate is former Cypress College student Gerrie Schipske, who previously defeated faculty member Peter Mathews in the race for a U.S. Congressional District seat.

Student Learning Outcomes Workshops Upcoming

Developing and using student learning outcomes has taken on increasing importance among community college practitioners in recent years, especially in institutions like Cypress College, where mission and vision statements focus on student success and learning.

Workshops are being sponsored by the Research and Planning Group (RP Group) of California Community Colleges in collaboration with a number of other statewide community college organizations.

They will be led by California Community College practitioners who have direct experience with student learning outcomes systems and assessment tools, many of whom have been involved in early student learning outcomes efforts in the state.

To assist faculty, administrators, researchers and planners with developing their assessment systems and practices for student learning outcomes, three concurrent half-day sessions will be offered to attendees:

- Beginning Steps: Building a Learning Outcomes Assessment Framework for Your College
- Identifying and Assessing Learning Outcomes at the College, Program and Course Level
- Practitioner Insights: CCC Assessment Models in Action (A Panel of Practitioners)

Fall dates and locations are as follows: October 25 in Sacramento, November 13 in Pasadena, and December 6 in Riverside.

Fees for a one-day workshop are $80 per person, which include lunch and materials. Discounts will be offered to institutions with seven or more attendees.

To join Cypress College faculty and staff at the November 13 workshop, please contact Heather Brown, director of Institutional Research, at ext. 47311.

Phase II Railing Removal About to Begin?

The NOCCCD Board of Trustees is scheduled to consider approval of a plan to remove all of the Phase II piazza rails at Tuesday night’s meeting.

If the board gives the green light, work will begin to remove all the remaining cement rails from the campus.

If all goes according to the plan, work could be completed sometime next semester.

Much of the chain-link fence has been removed on the ground level, perhaps most visibly between the Library and Fine Arts. Fencing on the piazza, which will remain in place, is being strengthened.

Floating Wall Gallery

October 7 - November 2, 2002

CYPRESS -- Dar Spain's Primary Content, Botanica & Others and Roger Bennett's Florascapes will open at Cypress College Photography Galleries on October 7 and extend through November 2, 2002. Spain's hand-painted photographs will be on view in the Photography Gallery and the Library Galleries. Bennett's digital photographic work will be on display in the Floating Wall Gallery.

Northern California artist Dar Spain has combined painting and photography for nearly twenty years. In the early 1980's she began taking photographs and making black and white prints to use as references for drawings and paintings. After being introduced to the process of hand-coloring, she moved from painting on paper and canvas to painting directly onto photographs. She finds this a perfect combination as it allows her to create photographic imagery and also to work with color in a personal, intuitive manner.

Primary Content is her newest work. The images begin with the visual and tactile experiencing of natural elements, usually out of context and removed from their origins. The work is about her encounters with time, season, place, the movement of rivers, and the pull of tides. Spain finds a poignancy and beauty in the stone, the leaf and the fragments of trees.
According to Spain, "Juxtapositions of forms evolve, colors lead from one to another, metaphors reveal themselves along the way. It feels like writing in many ways, where one word leads to the next."

In the Library Gallery Spain will be displaying work from her Botanica, Banner and Kimono series, most of which are staged and photographed in her studio. Her approach to hand coloring is based on an intuitive, loose approach rather than a literal representation. The sensibility or mood of an image, which evolves during the coloring process, intrigues her more than the documentation of objects in a natural context. She exhibits regularly in solo and group shows throughout the country and is represented locally by the Susan Spiritus Gallery in Newport Beach.

Orange County photographer Roger Bennett has been making exquisite black and white landscape images in the tradition of Ansel Adams and his local mentor Larry Vogel, for over 25 years. Of late he has come full circle and moved away from the "reality" of traditional black and white nature photography and embraced both color and digital photography. The images in Bennett's Florascape series begin with basic pictures of flowers which he distorts and modifies in the computer seeking to express his love of nature through a abstract and metaphorical reality.

The Cypress College Photography Galleries are open Monday through Thursday from 9am to 9pm and Friday and Saturday from 9am to 1pm. The Galleries are located on the second floor of Technical Education Building #1 and the third floor of the Library building. Cypress College is located at 9200 Valley View Street in Cypress between Lincoln and Orange Avenues. Park in Lot #1 and use the meters or pay $2 for a temporary parking pass at a machine located in the lot near the Business Building. For more information, please call (714) 484-7443.

Their, They’re, There
New Sculptural Work by Steve DeGroodt & David McDonald
October 10-November 7
Reception: Thursday, October 10, 2002 7pm

John Cage has said that the purpose of art is to replicate nature in its manner of operation. Growth, decay, rebuilding, aging, the ravages of use, these are all part of the operation of nature and subsequently play a role in the sculptural work of Steve DeGroodt and David McDonald. Materials are sought for their intrinsic properties. The materials lead to form and the metamorphosis happens when they begin to interact. The creative process becomes central. Chiffon is chosen for subtle volume, wood for its suppleness, plaster for its density and volume, cast offs for their rich poetic invocations.

While each sculpture is abstract in its own self contained entity, a subtle inarticulate counter point can resonate within this group. The work may allude, remind or even evoke things outside of themselves, but they have their own internal rules of existence much like every object or being. As such all one needs to now about the work is contained within it.
