Spring, Intersession Schedule Hits Web

► The spring 2002 schedule is on the campus Web site and will be in print soon.

Score another victory for the immediacy provided by the Internet. Cypress College's spring class schedule hit the campus Web site more than a week ago, the same day it was OK'd to go to press.

Printed schedules should be available on campus Thanksgiving week, at the latest.

Again this semester, students are being encouraged to use the WebStar registration system — a part of the new Banner software package. Students can register using their home computers, or they can take advantage of campus computer labs, including a temporary lab that will be established in, or near, Admissions and Records.

To find the class schedule, go to the campus Web site, click on the large logo and then click on the schedule icon (shown above). Or, simply type <http://www.cypress-college.org/schedule> into your browser's location bar.

The schedule contains listings for the spring semester and winter intersession. Separate listings of weekend, evening and short-term courses are also available.

Academic Computing and the Public Information Office teamed to get the schedule on the Web. The schedule is produced by the Office of Instruction.

Diane Montano (below), director of the Campus Children's Center, cuts the ribbon during a ceremony on Monday, November 5 to dedicate the center's new playground. It didn't take long for the young students to take advantage of the new equipment (left), which features two slides, plenty of stairs (remember when those used to be fun?) and an observation deck.

Accreditation Team Visits Campus on Tuesday

A two-person team from the Accrediting Commission will be on campus on Tuesday to validate the college's Focused Mid-Term Accreditation Report.

The team has scheduled meetings with a variety of college personnel, but anyone wishing to speak to the team can attend an open session from 1-2 p.m. in L-310.

Copies of the report are available on the campus Web site (from the index page, click on "Campus Documents & Publications") and from Nancy Byrnes, vice president of Educational Support and Planning, at ext. 47312.

CHARGERS

Members of the women's soccer team have secured their sixth consecutive Orange Empire Conference championship. The Lady Chargers are preparing for the playoffs after completing their regular season with a 20-0-2 record. The women open the playoffs here at 2 p.m. on Tuesday. If they win, they'll play again at home at 2 p.m. on Saturday. The women's soccer team is coached by Dave King.

Chances are you've been seeing Mary Forman's face around campus lately. As the recipient of the Hispanic Education Endowment Fund's "Apple of Gold Award," she is featured in the November 2-8 edition of Excelsior, a county-wide Spanish-language newspaper. Mary is the only community college instructor honored with the award. She is a Language Arts instructor and the English faculty member in the Puente program.
